Work, Study & Accessibility...

...these three words capture
the vision of the Work Study Program at North House Folk School. Work Study is exactly what it says: an opportunity to work on campus while earning credit toward a course
in traditional craft.

work study opportunities

Willing & helping hands have played a central role building North House Folk School since our beginning. The Work Study program insures that our programs are financially accessible to everyone. Our goal is to attract participants highly interested in North House's commitment to building community, motivated to work in a community service role and interested in hands-on learning & traditional craft.

wednesdays at 1 pm

Setting up campus each week for an upcoming weekend of classes is a huge task, and we can always use help! Moving tables, sweeping, mopping – these are the essential activities to make campus shine. In addition, other projects occasionally pop up, and we'll advertise those as needed.

week-long sessions

Work at North House for a week; stay in Grand Marais for free! During our "peak season" – May–November – we host a Work Study participant each week. You'll help us take care of daily campus chores – garbage, recycling, bathrooms, and some special projects – in exchange for course credit AND a free campsite next door at the Grand Marais Recreation Area Campground. See session dates and details online at www.northhouse.org.

all the details: compensation

Participants earn $75 in course credit for every 8 hours of work (the average cost of a day of coursework).

requirements

Anyone can apply, but many of the tasks are physical – from moving tables to watering the garden – so we ask that applicants consider the duties of the program before committing.
